DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 1-5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claim 1 recites "the side surfaces" of the semiconductor chip. See that this term lacks antecedent basis in the claim. See that claims 2-5 depend upon 1 and have therefore also been rendered unclear by this.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in-

(1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effect under this subsection of a national application published under section 122(b) only if the international application designating the United States was published under Article 21(2)(a) of such treaty in the English language; or

(2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that a patent shall not be deemed filed in the United States for the purposes of this subsection based on the filing of an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a).

Claims 1-4 and 6-9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Corisis et al. (US 5956236).

Corisis et al. discloses an electronic component (See Fig. 5 and 6) comprising:

At least one chip 12 (see multiple chips 12) having at least its electrodes (underneath 16, connected to 16) formed exclusively on one surface thereof, and surfaces other than said one surface being continuously covered with a protective material 14b.

Corisis et al also discloses the above electronic component wherein:

- Said protective material comprises an organic resin or an inorganic insulating material (Col. 3, lines 50+)
- A semiconductor chip 12 mounted on a package substrate 10, the electrode formed on a device surface of the chip, and both a side wall and a bottom surface of the chip are covered with the protective material
- Chips bonded to each other
- Chips bonded by said protective material and a solder bump 16 on the electrodes, the electrodes formed solely on one surface of the chip and wherein interspaces and bottom surfaces of the chips are continuously covered by the protective material
- A Chip array

Art Unit: 2827

- Also regarding claims 1-9, see that the protective material 14b is adjacent the side surfaces of the chip and provides substantially vertical side walls of protective material.

Regarding claims 3, and 8:

A "product by process" claim is directed to the product per se, no matter how actually made, In re Brown, 173 USPQ 685; In re Luck, 177 USPQ 523; In re Fessmann, 180 USPQ 324; In re Avery, 186 USPQ 161; In re Wertheim, 191 USPQ 90 (209 USPQ 554 does not deal with this issue); In re Marosi et al, 218 USPQ 289; and particularly In re Thorpe, 227 USPQ 964, all of which make it clear that it is the patentability of the final product per se which must be determined in a "product by process" claim, and not the patentability of the process, and that an old or obvious product produced by a new method is not patentable as a product, whether claimed in "product by process" claims or not. Note that applicant has the burden of proof in such cases, as the above case law makes clear.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claim 5 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Corisis et al. (US 5956236).

See that Corisis et al. discloses all the above including plural chips. However, see that the prior art fails to specifically disclose "a plurality of different types of semiconductor chips". See that it is not uncommon in the art to have an arrangement of "different types" of chips in a multi module package or multi-chip package. It would have been obvious to one with ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to arrange different types of chips in a package in order to economize space by arranging different types of chips within the same module instead of using separate/different modules for each different type of chip.
